Phil was engaged to present on two topics, Team Building and Communication, to a group of 110 employees at an interactive marketing company. Included in Phil's presentation was an assessment tool which helped the group identify various strata of personality types. We found the assessment particularly useful and Phil's contemporary, participatory style very engaging and thought provoking.

We met with the management team after the event to talk about what key elements of the presentation we wanted to perpetuate and 'bake' into our organization on an ongoing basis, and have incorporated the assessment tool's results to assist in our communication and interaction both internally and externally with clients.

Time well spent with Phil!
